A bachelor's degree in art education is tailored to equip future teachers with skills in both artistic techniques and classroom management. Coursework often includes drawing, painting, sculpture, art history, and design principles, alongside classes in educational psychology, instructional strategies, and curriculum development.

Alternative Degree Paths

Some individuals may pursue a degree in fine arts with a minor or certification in education. This pathway allows for a strong focus on artistic development while meeting teaching certification requirements through additional coursework. Graduate degrees are also common for those seeking advanced knowledge or teaching positions at higher educational levels.

Student Teaching and Practical Experience

Hands-on experience is critical in the journey to becoming an art teacher. Most degree programs integrate student teaching internships, where candidates work under the supervision of experienced teachers. This practical component helps develop classroom management skills and instructional techniques specific to art education.

Certification and Licensing

Becoming a certified art teacher requires meeting state-specific licensing requirements. Certification ensures that teachers have met professional standards and are qualified to educate students effectively.

State Certification Requirements

Each state in the U.S. has its own set of requirements for art teacher certification. Generally, candidates must have completed an accredited teacher preparation program, passed relevant exams, and fulfilled student teaching hours. It is essential to research the specific criteria for the state where one intends to teach.

Teacher Licensing Exams

Prospective art teachers often must pass exams such as the Praxis series, which assess knowledge in both general education and subject-specific content. These exams evaluate understanding of art concepts, teaching methods, and classroom management skills.

Continuing Education and Renewal

Maintaining certification typically requires ongoing professional development. Art teachers must participate in workshops, courses, or additional training to renew their licenses and stay current with educational standards and artistic trends.

Colleges and Universities

With advanced degrees, art teachers can pursue careers in higher education, teaching art theory, history, or studio courses. These positions often involve research and curriculum development responsibilities.

Community Centers and Art Programs

Non-traditional settings such as community centers, museums, and after-school programs offer opportunities to teach art outside the formal education system. These roles often focus on fostering community engagement and lifelong learning.

Freelance and Online Teaching

The rise of digital platforms allows art teachers to offer private lessons and workshops online, expanding their reach and flexibility. This emerging area requires additional skills in digital communication and content creation.

becoming an art teacher: Cultivating the Arts in Education and Therapy Malcolm Ross, 2012-04-27 The constituency for education and therapy in the arts is rapidly expanding beyond the conventional school and clinical settings to include the wider community. In Cultivating the Arts in Education and Therapy, Malcolm Ross integrates traditional Chinese Five Element Theory, also known as The Five Phases of Change, with contemporary Western psychological and cultural studies, to form a new Syncretic Model of creative artistic practice. The Syncretic Model is explored and validated through an analysis of interviews with practising, successful artists, and in a comprehensive review of the latest neuro-scientific research into human consciousness and emotion. The book addresses the well-documented difficulties experienced by arts teachers and therapists intervening in, supporting and evaluating the creative development of individual students and clients. This groundbreaking text repositions the arts as central to the effective initiation and management of change in contemporary society. Besides being of wide general interest, it will have particular relevance for practising and trainee arts teachers, arts therapists and community artists. With the demand for their services growing and pressure to demonstrate effectiveness mounting, the arts community is looking to build bridges between the different arts, and between arts education and therapy across national boundaries. This book offers a fresh, coherent, and challenging framework for a revitalized reflective practice from an experienced authority in the

becoming an art teacher: Crossing Boundaries: The Journey from Teacher to Teaching Artist Purnima Ruanglertbutr, 2012-11-01 Crossing Boundaries: The Journey from Teacher to Teaching Artist is an exhibition curated by Purnima Ruanglertbutr. Crossing Boundaries displays more than sixty works of art by twenty-seven secondary school Visual Art teachers who have recently graduated from the Master of Teaching (Secondary, Art) program at the University of Melbourne. In addition to a wide range of eclectic artworks across multiple mediums, this catalogue comprises succinct and informative commentaries on the role that art making plays in the graduates' teaching. These are special insights; Visual Art teachers are educators who carry the expectation that to be good in the classroom, they should have a vibrant private practice – that in order to 'teach it', they also have to prove that they can 'do it'. But through their works of art and artist statements, the participants in this exhibition question their practice and expose themselves to continued examination and critique. The commentaries reveal the graduates exhibit professional identities that amalgamate both the roles of an 'artist' and a 'teacher' through a re-framing of the teacher of art as an 'artist teacher' or a 'teaching artist'. The foreword by Art Education Australia, Art Education Victoria and the introduction by the curator explores the term 'teaching artist' within the context of the exhibition - that 'teaching artists' boast a hybrid identity fusing the roles of teacher and artist – an identity that conflates two distinct professions and is successful because the artist teacher brings practitioner skills in both professions.

becoming an art teacher: Becoming One Community Kathleen Fay, Suzanne Whaley, 2004 More and more classrooms across the country are filled with children who speak languages other than English. In these diverse classrooms, many teachers struggle with how to create reading and writing instruction that is appropriate for their English language learners. In Becoming One Community, Kathleen Fay and Suzanne Whaley provide expert guidance on helping students who are just learning English develop their voice and skills within reading and writing workshops.--JoAnn PortalupiWritten for the general classroom teacher whose class includes English language learners (ELLs), as well as for ELL teachers working in general classrooms, this book portrays ELL students in grades 3-6 who learn essential reading and writing skills and are full members of the classroom community. Throughout the book, Kathleen and Suzanne emphasize the importance of talk. By talking during science workshop, after read-aloud, or when sharing an idea with a partner, ELLs use language authentically and, in using it, become more adept speakers, readers and writers of English. Included are: classroom scenes with dialogue in whole-class and small-group settings; authentic one-on-one conferences with readers and writers at varying levels of English language proficiency; reflection by the teachers before, during, and after teaching; scenarios from inclusive classrooms and descriptions of teachers' decisions which enable them to be successful learning environments. This is not a quick how-to guide. Becoming One Community provides many practical examples of diverse classrooms at work and embeds theory on English-language development throughout. It gives teachers a repertoire of ideas to meet the needs of ELL students in their classroom but ultimately trusts in the teacher's own skills to best know their students and appreciate their innate intelligence.

becoming an art teacher: Counternarratives from Asian American Art Educators Ryan Shin, Maria Lim, Oksun Lee, Sandrine Han, 2022-12-26 Counternarratives from Asian American Art Educators: Identities, Pedagogies, and Practice beyond the Western Paradigm collects and explores the professional and pedagogical narratives of Asian art educators and researchers in North America. Few studies published since the substantial immigration of Asian art educators to the United States in the 1990s have addressed their professional identities in higher education, K-12, and museum contexts. By foregrounding narratives from Asian American arts educators within these settings, this edited volume enacts a critical shift from Western, Eurocentric perspectives to the unique contributions of Asian American practitioners. Enhanced by the application of the AsianCrit framework and theories of intersectionality, positionality, decolonization, and allyship, these original contributor counternarratives focus on professional and pedagogical discourses and practices that support Asian American identity development and practice. A significant contribution to the field of art education, this book highlights the voices and experiences of Asian art educators and serves as an ideal scholarly resource for exploring their identity formation, construction, and development of a historically underrepresented minoritized group in North America.

Together the chapters document an important beginning, as well as an ongoing transitional time in which curriculum understood as aesthetic text is awakening to the ways in which art practices stimulate a social awareness at the level of other embodied practices. Organized in three themes, gathering, transforming, and becoming, this volume brings together a selection of Irwin's single and co-authored essays to offer a variety of rich perspectives to scholars and students in the field of education who are interested in the ways in which arts-based research allows the possibilities of bringing together the artistic, pedagogical, and scholarly selves of an educator.

becoming an art teacher: Becoming One With the World Kathleen Kesson, 2024-08-01 Becoming One With the World: A Guide to Neohumanist Education responds to an urgent need to reconceptualize the fundamentals of education in light of the many social, ecological, and political challenges facing humanity today. It answers the call for a new educational paradigm, one based on a far richer, more insightful understanding of human possibility, one that decenters human "exceptionalism" in favor of a new ecological consciousness, one that promotes harmony and cooperation between humans and non-human others, and one that cultivates wisdom. Neohumanist education strives for a harmonious balance between spiritual development and critical engagement with the world, in the belief that an awakened conscience translates into transcending differences and creating a sense of unity with all beings. The book is designed to enhance the spiritual and pedagogical knowledge and skill of teachers, parents, and school leaders who are seeking more holistic approaches to educating young people. Both richly theoretical and eminently practical, the book applies the primary commitments of Neohumanist education—cultivating love and kinship with humans and non-human others, freeing the mind from dogma and limitations, fostering a balanced approach between inquiry into the outer, objective world(s) and the inner, subjective world(s), and awakening the desire for social and environmental justice—to the full spectrum of traditional subject matter. It draws upon a wide range of new research and scholarship to illustrate an educational model capable of maximizing human potential and inspiring young people to create a future that is just, joyful, and sustainable. ENDORSEMENTS: What a wonderful book! Packed into its pages are decades of experience as a meditator, yogi, parent, educator, and Neohumanist. This latter is the crux of this text, designed to lay out in clear accessible language the fundamentals of this rich and inspiring philosophy and to touch on ways it can find its way into the daily flow of the classroom and school. A philosophy worth its salt is one that actually makes a difference in the day to day lives of people. In Kathleen Kesson and her comprehensive book, we find just this: practical, pragmatic insights into a philosophy both new and ancient! It is a gift to educators and anyone committed to wholesome futures for children, society and of course, the planet. — Marcus Bussey, University of the Sunshine Coast, Australia Becoming One With the World is an extraordinary book. While its primary aims are explaining the philosophy of Neohumanism and detailing a Neohumanistic approach to education, it is simultaneously a comprehensive summary and synthesis of scholarly literature in the field of holistic education. Unifying knowledge and methods from many curricula areas, including spirituality, ecology, aesthetics, literacy, cultural diversity and ethics, it offers a clear orientation to a way of educating young people that seems key to human surviving and thriving. — Aostre Johnson, Saint Michael's College in Vermont becoming an art teacher: Always Becoming, Never Arriving David J. Mulder, 2024-12-19 Does Jesus care how I arrange the desks in my classroom? How I evaluate student work? The way I interact with students and colleagues? What if all these small, moment-by-moment classroom decisions a Christian teacher makes are actually the evidence of living discipleship? Teaching Christianly does not just happen; it is the result of deliberate choices to work toward shrinking the gap between what we (say we) believe and what we actually do in our teaching. This book is an exploration of the teaching profession through the lens of living out our calling through teaching-as-discipleship. Whether you are new to the profession or a seasoned veteran, you will find ideas to expand your imagination about what teaching Christianly looks like, considering topics that run the range from professionalism and ethics, to a biblical view of learners and learning, to content knowledge and curriculum, to planning, instruction, and assessment. Teaching Christianly is a journey, a process of growing as a more faithful disciple, and more closely following Jesus day by day. Learning to teach Christianly is an adventure of always becoming, and never arriving, until that day when we meet the Lord face-to-face. Welcome to the adventure!
