cvs chief marketing officer: The Longevity Economy Joseph F. Coughlin, 2017-11-07

Oldness: a social construct at odds with reality that constrains how we live after middle age and stifles business thinking on how to best serve a group of consumers, workers, and innovators that is growing larger and wealthier with every passing day. Over the past two decades, Joseph F. Coughlin has been busting myths about aging with groundbreaking multidisciplinary research into what older people actually want -- not what conventional wisdom suggests they need. In The Longevity Economy, Coughlin provides the framing and insight business leaders need to serve the growing older market: a vast, diverse group of consumers representing every possible level of health and wealth, worth about $8 trillion in the United States alone and climbing. Coughlin provides deep insight into a population that consistently defies expectations: people who, through their continued personal and professional ambition, desire for experience, and quest for self-actualization, are building a striking, unheralded vision of longer life that very few in business fully understand. His focus on women -- they outnumber men, control household spending and finances, and are leading the charge toward tomorrow's creative new narrative of later life -- is especially illuminating. Coughlin pinpoints the gap between myth and reality and then shows businesses how to bridge it. As the demographics of global aging transform and accelerate, it is now critical to build a new understanding of the shifting physiological, cognitive, social, family, and psychological realities of the longevity economy.

His disappointment with the traditional neoclassical economic theory top-down macho-biased approach to homo-economicus, along with his belief that homo-sapines choice behavior & decision-making is limited mainly by his/her biology, or in other words, economics actually is a part of biology science, motivated him to gather deep knowledge about human biology, brain & nervous system, gender differences, genetic and hormonal & chemical functions. The Female brain unearths the neoclassical economic theory biases/ anomalies, book is the first of two books the author has written about this newborn, yet, burgeoning field of Neuro-economics, a highly promising human science approach to understanding the neurobiological bases of human choice behavior and decision-making processes. The author presents a very promising and blossoming scientific field, which portrays a more accurate and real & candid picture of human nature than neoclassical reductionist economic theory. In many aspects, neuroeconomics approach is a positive, constructive one, helping to explain the human capacity for kindness and cooperation and the centrality of fairness to social emotions, morality & norms (by-passed by many Walrasian and neoclassical advocates). The book, after all, introduces an economic agent who is not necessarily acquisitive automation conditioned always to narrow self-interest, like neoclassical economic theory's unisex (macho) or unsex, but can be a female & male, young & old decision maker. In other words, it introduces a more real, whole human: A 'Homo-Neuro-Economicus.' The most outstanding initiative of the book is the introduction of a feminist economic theory, its critical approach to the neoclassical economic theory, supported interestingly not only by sociocultural/historical insights but by neuro-biological, psychological, gender, chemical & hormonal evidence, too. The author envisions, that this challenging discipline is likely, once for all, to realize Adam Smith & David Hume's dream by providing; A unified theory of human choice behavior and decision-making in the forthcoming future.
