Overview of the I-485 Marriage-Based Interview

The I-485 marriage-based interview is an in-person meeting conducted by United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) officers to verify the legitimacy of a marriage-based green card application. This step is mandatory for most applicants who file Form I-485, Application to Register Permanent Residence or Adjust Status, based on marriage to a U.S. citizen or lawful permanent resident. The interview's primary goal is to confirm that the marriage is genuine and not entered into for immigration benefits.

During the interview, both spouses typically attend together and answer questions about their relationship, living arrangements, shared experiences, and future plans. The questions range from personal habits to significant life events that help USCIS officers determine the authenticity of the marital relationship. The interview also provides an opportunity to address any discrepancies or concerns arising from the application or supporting documents.

Common I-485 Interview Questions Marriage Based Applicants Should Expect

Applicants should be prepared to answer a variety of questions that delve into the details of their marriage and daily life together. These questions help USCIS assess whether the marriage is bona fide. Understanding the common i 485 interview questions marriage based applicants face can reduce anxiety and improve interview performance.

Questions About the Relationship History

USCIS officers often begin by asking about the couple's relationship timeline and key milestones. These questions typically include:

- How and where did you meet your spouse?
- When did your relationship become serious?
- When and where was the wedding ceremony held?
- Did you have a honeymoon? If so, where?
- How long have you lived together?

Questions Regarding Daily Life and Household

To verify the shared life aspect of the marriage, officers inquire about everyday routines, living arrangements, and household responsibilities:

- What is your spouse's daily routine?
- Who does the cooking and cleaning?
- What kind of furniture do you have in your living room or bedroom?
- What television programs or hobbies do you both enjoy?
- Do you share any bank accounts or bills?

Questions About Family and Future Plans

USCIS also evaluates the couple's integration of family and long-term commitment through questions such as:

- Have you met each other's families? If so, when and where?
- Do you have any children together or plans to have children?
- What are your plans for the future as a married couple?
- Do you have any joint assets or insurance policies?

Purpose and Importance of the Interview Questions

The i 485 interview questions marriage based applicants encounter serve several critical functions within the immigration process. Primarily, these questions help USCIS officers determine whether the marriage is genuine or fraudulent. The U.S. government is vigilant about preventing sham marriages entered solely for immigration benefits, and the interview is a safeguard against such fraud.

By asking detailed questions about the couple's life together, USCIS verifies consistency between the applicants' answers and the submitted evidence. The interview also allows officers to observe the couple's interaction and assess whether their relationship appears authentic. A successful interview significantly increases the likelihood of approval for permanent resident status.

Being honest and consistent in responses is crucial, as discrepancies or false statements can result in delays or denial of the application. Additionally, couples should be prepared to explain any unusual circumstances or gaps in their relationship history.

Documentation Needed for the Interview

i 485 interview questions marriage based: Green Card Fraud - The Ugly Truth About Immigration Fraud In America John Garbinski, 2020-02-13
Each year, millions of people come to the United States on temporary visas but refuse to leave, without consequence. Individuals who refuse to leave at the time their visa expires, should be subject to criminal penalties. The 9/11 Report concluded that a visa tracking system was essential. This is required by law, but implementation has been blocked by Congress. Nearly every other country in the world has both entry and exit control. Visitors to these countries, must process both in and out of the country. But the United States has ONLY entry control, and NO exit control. This has made the task of determining if a visitor has departed the United States, or has remained, much more difficult. During the fourteen years that I was employed by the United States Government, I experienced first-hand, the lengths that some individuals would go, to obtain a Green Card and/or Citizenship in the United States. The cases outlined in this book, are real cases.
