Administrative Divisions of South Sudan

The political map of South Sudan highlights the country's administrative divisions, which are crucial for governance and resource management. South Sudan is divided into states, counties, and payams, reflecting a hierarchical structure aimed at decentralized administration. Understanding these divisions is essential for grasping how political authority is distributed across the nation.

States of South Sudan

Initially, South Sudan was divided into 10 states following its independence in 2011. However, political reforms and conflicts have led to changes in the number and boundaries of these states over time. As of recent arrangements, the country comprises 10 constitutionally recognized states, which are:

- Central Equatoria
- Eastern Equatoria
- Jonglei

- Lakes
- Northern Bahr el Ghazal
- Unity
- Upper Nile
- Western Bahr el Ghazal
- Western Equatoria
- Central Upper Nile (sometimes referenced in administrative contexts)

These states are further subdivided into counties, which serve as the primary local government units. Each state has its own administrative capital, providing regional governance and services.

Counties and Local Governance

Counties represent the second level of administrative division within South Sudan's political map. Each county is responsible for local administration, including security, development projects, and community engagement. The number of counties varies by state, reflecting population density and geographic considerations. These counties are further divided into payams, the smallest administrative units, enhancing grassroots governance.

International Borders and Neighboring Countries

The political map of South Sudan also delineates the country's international borders, which are vital for understanding its geopolitical context. South Sudan shares boundaries with several countries in East Africa, influencing its diplomatic relations and cross-border interactions.

Bordering Nations

South Sudan is bordered by the following countries:

- Sudan to the north
- Egypt (via Sudan) to the north beyond Sudan's border
- Ethiopia to the east
- Kenya to the southeast
- Uganda to the south
- Democratic Republic of Congo to the southwest

- Central African Republic to the west

These borders are significant for trade, security, and cultural exchanges. The northern border with Sudan is particularly sensitive due to historical conflicts and unresolved disputes over border demarcation, including the contested Abyei area.

Border Disputes and Demarcation

Several sections of South Sudan's borders remain contested, affecting the political map's accuracy and stability. The Abyei region, claimed by both Sudan and South Sudan, remains a flashpoint. Additionally, border demarcations with Ethiopia and Uganda have seen negotiations to clarify sovereignty and secure peaceful coexistence. These disputes impact regional security and development strategies.

Major Cities and Political Centers

The political map of South Sudan identifies key urban centers that serve as hubs of administration, commerce, and culture. These cities play a pivotal role in the country's political and economic landscape.

Juba - The Capital City

Juba is South Sudan's capital and largest city, located in Central Equatoria state. It is the primary political center, hosting the national government, foreign embassies, and major institutions. On the political map, Juba is prominently marked, signifying its importance as the seat of power and administrative coordination.

Other Notable Cities

Besides Juba, several other cities are significant for their administrative and economic roles:

- Bor - capital of Jonglei state
- Aweil - capital of Northern Bahr el Ghazal
- Malakal - capital of Upper Nile state
- Wau - capital of Western Bahr el Ghazal
- Yei - an important commercial town in Central Equatoria

These urban centers contribute to regional governance and serve as focal points for trade and social services.

Ethnic and Political Implications of the Map

The political map of South Sudan is deeply intertwined with the country's ethnic composition and political affiliations. The spatial distribution of ethnic groups often corresponds with administrative boundaries, influencing local governance and conflict dynamics.

Ethnic Groups and Regional Distribution

South Sudan is home to numerous ethnic communities, including the Dinka, Nuer, Shilluk, Azande, and others. The political map reflects these groups' traditional territories, which often coincide with state or county borders. This ethnic geography is crucial for understanding local power structures, resource allocation, and social cohesion.

Political Influence and Territorial Control

Control over certain regions depicted on the political map often correlates with political power and access to resources. Various armed groups and political factions have claimed territories, especially in conflict-affected states like Jonglei and Upper Nile. The map thus serves as a tool for analyzing the shifting dynamics of power and governance within South Sudan.

Challenges and Changes in South Sudan's Political Geography

The political map of South Sudan is not static; it has undergone numerous changes due to political decisions, conflict, and peace agreements. These alterations reflect ongoing efforts to stabilize the country and promote effective governance.

Redrawing State Boundaries

Since independence, South Sudan has experienced changes in the number and boundaries of its states. In 2015, a controversial decree expanded the number of states from 10 to 28, later adjusted to 32, before reverting to 10 states in a revitalized peace agreement. These changes aimed to address ethnic tensions and improve local governance but also generated disputes and confusion.

Impact of Conflict on Territorial Integrity

Armed conflicts have affected control over territories shown on the political map of South Sudan. Internal displacement, shifting frontlines, and rebel movements have altered the effective governance of various areas. Such instability complicates administrative planning and development efforts.

Peace Agreements and Future Prospects

Peace agreements have aimed to stabilize South Sudan's political geography by reaffirming state boundaries and promoting power-sharing. The revitalized peace deal of 2018 emphasized returning to the original 10-state structure, which has been reinforced in recent political processes. These measures aspire to create a more coherent and manageable political map conducive to national unity and development.

political map of south sudan: South Sudan Edward Thomas, 2015-01-08 In 2011, South Sudan became independent following a long war of liberation, that gradually became marked by looting, raids and massacres pitting ethnic communities against each other. In this remarkably comprehensive work, Edward Thomas provides a multi-layered examination of what is happening in the country today. Writing from the perspective of South Sudan's most mutinous hinterland, Jonglei state, the book explains how this area was at the heart of South Sudan's struggle. Drawing on hundreds of interviews and a broad range of sources, this book gives a sharply focused, fresh account of South Sudan's long, unfinished fight for liberation.

political map of south sudan: Post-Referendum Sudan National and Regional Questions Wassara, Samson Samuel, Al-Abdin, Al-Tayib Zain, 2015-03-02 The fate of Sudan, by then the largest country in Africa, was clearly decided when results of the referendum vote were announced in February 2011. Policy makers, scholars and the international community began to grapple with critical issues that might arise after the independence of South Sudan and how different stakeholders were likely to react during the period of uncertainty. Political developments in Sudan were long-term outcomes of post-cold war revolutions in the world system after the Soviet Union collapsed. A domino effect of such events swept across Eastern Europe with some manifestations in the Horn of Africa. The fall of Mengistu Haile Mariam, marked the beginning of the redrawing of the map of Africa and posed a challenge to the long held principle of preservation of colonial borders that had been enshrined in the Charter of the Organisation of African Unity. The precedent set by the independence of Eritrea seemed to encourage southern Sudan to press forward for independence through a two pronged approach of armed struggle and diplomacy led by the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement. This book attempts to understand national, regional and continental dimensions of the unresolved issues that could result in the escalation of conflict in the Sudan. It examines internal dynamics of the Sudan after secession of the south and how these dynamics might affect neighbouring countries in the geopolitical regions: the Horn of Africa, the Great Lakes Region and Central Africa. A section of the book is dedicated to dynamics within South Sudan as a new state. Post-conflict South Sudan as country was marked by extreme poverty, lack of infrastructure and prevalence of inter-communal armed violence. This book proposes possible policies to prevent the country from descending into a state of economic and social chaos. The book provides the argument that equitable and rational transformative socio-economic programmes and policies could greatly reduce potentials for conflict. This book calls on policy makers to pursue policies that could lead to concrete projects planned to alleviate poverty and provision of basic social services such as education, health, and safe water. The book comes to the conclusion that political stability will depend on collective actions of stakeholders to ensure that peace prevails both in the north and the south to guarantee human security in the region.

political map of south sudan: Identity, Citizenship, and Violence in Two Sudans: Reimagining a Common Future A. Idris, 2013-08-20 The 2011 split of Sudan and the conflicts that have followed make it a case of ongoing significance for understanding state-building in Africa. political map of south sudan: Pan-Africanism: Political Philosophy and Socio-Economic Anthropology for African Liberation and Governance Kini-Yen Kinni, 2015-09-23 This Book is the outcome of a long project begun thirty years ago. It is a book on the makings of pan-Africanism through the predicaments of being black in a world dominated by being white. The book is a tribute and celebration of the efforts of the African-American and African-Caribbean Diaspora who took the initiative and the audacity to fight and liberate themselves from the shackles of slavery. It is also a celebration of those Africans who in their own way carried the torch of inspiration and resilience to save and reconstruct the Free Humanism of Africa. As a story of the rise from the shackles of slavery and poverty to the summit of Victors of their Renaissance Identity and Self-Determination as a People, the book is the story of African refusal to celebrate victimhood. The book also situates women as central actors in the Pan-African project, which is often presented as an exclusively masculine endeavour. It introduces a balanced gender approach and diagnosis of the Women actors of Pan-Africanism which was very much lacking. The problem of balkanisation of Africa on post-colonial affiliations and colonial linguistic lines has taken its toll on Africa's building of its common identity and personality. The result is that Africans are more remote to each other in their pigeon-hole-nation-states which put more restrictions for African inter-mobility, coupled by education and cultural affiliations, the communication and transportation and trading networks which are still tied more to their colonial masters than among themselves. This book looks into the problem of the new wave of Pan-Africanism and what strategies that can be proposed for a more participatory Pan-Africanism inspired by the everyday realities of African masses at home and in the diaspora. This book is the first book of its kind that gives a comprehensive and multidimensional coverage of Pan-Africanism. It is a very timely and vital compendium.

It also draws on the author's own experience of working on human rights and protection in some of the world's most violent conflicts. It is written not about what the UN ought to do - or how it could have behaved differently in an abstract or theoretically ideal world - but what the UN is actually doing to fulfil the fundamental purposes set forth in its Charter.

political map of south sudan: Social and Political Foundations of Constitutions Denis J. Galligan, Mila Versteeg, 2013-10-14 This volume analyses the social and political forces that influence constitutions and the process of constitution making. In the first part leading scholars analyse and develop a range of theoretical perspectives, including constitutions as coordination devices, mission statements, contracts, products of domestic power play, transnational documents, and as reflection of the will of the people. In the second part these theories are examined through in-depth case studies of the social and political foundations of constitutions in countries such as Egypt, Nigeria, Japan, Romania, Bulgaria, New Zealand, Israel, Argentina and others. The result is a multidimensional study of constitutions as social phenomena and their interaction with other social phenomena.

political map of south sudan: African Political Thought Guy Martin, 2012-12-05 For most of its history, the African continent has witnessed momentous political change, remarkable philosophical innovation, and the complex cross-fertilization of ideologies and belief systems. This definitive study surveys the concepts, values, and historical upheavals that have shaped African political systems from the ancient period to the postcolonial era and beyond. Beginning with the emergence of indigenous political institutions, it traces the most important developments in African history, including the Africanization of Islam, liberal democratic movements, socialism, Pan-Africanism, and Africanist-Populist resistance to the neoliberal world order. The result is an invaluable resource on a region too often ignored in the history of political thought.

political map of south sudan: Africa in World Politics John W Harbeson, Donald Rothchild, 2018-04-24 The sixth edition of Africa in World Politics focuses on challenges African states face in constructing viable political economies in contexts both of familiar domestic challenges and an unprecedented mix of engagements, opportunities, and threats emanating from a turbulent and rapidly changing international order. This text, including new chapters on Nigeria and the influence of party politics on economic development, remains an invaluable resource for students of African politics seeking to navigate the continent's complex political and economic landscapes. Revised chapters consider both the extent and the limits of continued healthy growth rates in many countries; the impacts of investments by China and other BRICS countries; plateaus and some reversals in progress on human rights and democratization; dimensions of chronic state weakness deepened by insurgencies, including some that are connected to Al Qaeda and the Islamic State; and peacebuilding efforts struggling to uphold responsible sovereignty in the Sudans, the Great Lakes region, and elsewhere.

political map of south sudan: Hip Hop and Political Voice for Young South Sudanese Australians Sarah J. Williams, 2024-12-15 Hip Hop and Political Voice for Young South Sudanese Australians: Born to Stand Out explores the building of political voice of young South Sudanese Australians to resist racialising discourses, particularly through hip hop. Presented as an ethnography, Sarah J. Williams draws on empirical evidence from a youth participatory action research project facilitated by a small nonprofit organisation: Footprints. Each chapter foregrounds counter-narratives young South Sudanese Australian hip-hop artists portray in response to over a decade of media and moral panics targeting their communities, limiting their sense of freedom and resulting in a rise in youth suicide. The core message throughout suggests participants reject any goal of or focus on 'fitting in'. Instead, based on their conviction that they are 'born to stand out', these activists carve out space in the face of racialising discourses perpetuated primarily by Australian Whiteness. Through the lenses of new social movements and theories and perspectives informed by critical race theory and critical Hip Hop pedagogy, this book expands race and ethnicity as a central theme by exploring how the political voice of this group of young South Sudanese Australians manifests in important new ways that conventional theories of activism and resistance may not capture. Participants embark on consciousness-raising practices to reframe and assert their multiple identities whilst establishing themselves as social agents in the world.

political map of south sudan: Secessionism in African Politics Lotje de Vries, Pierre Englebert, Mareike Schomerus, 2018-08-20 Secessionism perseveres as a complex political phenomenon in Africa, yet often a more in-depth analysis is overshadowed by the aspirational simplicity of pursuing a new state. Using historical and contemporary approaches, this edited volume offers the most exhaustive collection of empirical studies of African secessionism to date. The respected expert contributors put salient and lesser known cases into comparative perspective, covering Biafra, Katanga, Eritrea and South Sudan alongside Barotseland, Cabinda, and the Comoros, among others. Suggesting that African secessionism can be understood through the categories of aspiration, grievance, performance, and disenchantment, the book's analytical framework promises to be a building block for future studies of the topic.
