pray for business growth: Transformative Religious Experience Joshua Iyadurai, 2015-04-30 What makes a priest of one religion become a preacher of another religion? How could a person embrace a religion suddenly that he or she had up to then opposed? Why would young women risk their reputation and endanger their lives for the sake of newfound faith? How could an alcoholic detest a sip of wine all of a sudden? What drives an atheist to become an ardent worshiper of God? How could an intelligent person relate to God as to an adult human being? Transformative Religious Experience answers these questions with fascinating narratives of conversion. These narratives together show how the transforming effects of conversion permeate the daily lives of converts in a multireligious context. Joshua Iyadurai analyzes psychologically the mystical turning point in the conversion process and finds that the divine-human encounter entails a cognitive restructuring: a new set of beliefs, values, and desires replaces previously held religious beliefs, values, and desires. By drawing insights from the fields of psychology, sociology, anthropology, and theology, Iyadurai develops an interdisciplinary step model from a phenomenological perspective to explain the conversion process that incorporates the religious practices and social-psychological factors while giving a central place to religious experience.

pray for business growth: The Real Source of the Economy Sriramadesikan. V, 2020-07-22 Many individuals who have reached the pinnacle of professional success, and acquired substantial wealth, are really not happy or contented. There is dissatisfaction over quality of life, and work-life balance. The plight of those who are not so 'successful' is still worse. What might be some of the root causes for this, and how do we bring an end to all these sufferings? Could it be due to the Lifestyle choices we have made? How do we move to a life that is free from stress, pain, and exploitation? How about a life that can be healthy for us with sufficient leisure time and everlasting peace, instead of a restless chase for survival? If we look back at the past of our country, the type of education that existed, which was vocation-oriented the value attached to age, experience, and expertise, we will find that the lifestyle of those times was much healthier and happier. Somewhere, in the urge to adopt Western education and culture, we have lost this heritage of ours. There is a need to have a paradigm shift, to go back to an employment-oriented education, sustain and develop communities that aim at the good of each individual. For individuals who wish to re-define themselves and their lifestyle, for business institutions who wish to build enterprises that truly support individuals and society, and for governments who want to re-define their delivery to their citizens, great insight is given into the issues and the solutions. For people interested in creating communities of parallel living, wherein people do not have to injure themselves or others in the pursuit of the basics of life, the book is an invaluable blueprint.
