Women's leadership networks are organized groups that connect female professionals, executives, and entrepreneurs to support their leadership journeys. These networks serve as platforms for sharing knowledge, experiences, and resources, fostering collaboration and empowerment among women in leadership roles or aspiring to such positions. The concept emerged in response to the persistent underrepresentation of women in senior leadership across industries. By providing access to mentorship, training, and peer support, these networks aim to build a community that encourages growth and advancement.

Purpose and Mission

The primary mission of a women's leadership network is to promote gender equity in leadership by empowering women with the skills, confidence, and connections needed to succeed. These networks often focus on career development, leadership training, professional networking, and advocacy for women's rights in the workplace. women s leadership network: Women Leadership, Decentralised Governance and Development D. Rajasekhar, R. Manjula, 2024-10-21 This book discusses experiences of women leaders in decentralised government structure in India and their participation in governance. The book also examines contribution of women leaders to the development of local area and economy through improved delivery of public services. In India, the policy of reserving seats and executive positions to women in the Panchayati Raj Institutions (grassroot governance bodies in India) at the village, sub-district and district levels, and urban local bodies was introduced three decades ago to improve representation of women at the grassroots level and enable them to access political decision-making at the local level. Because of the policy, about half of three million leaders in local government are currently women. The book explores the impact of this significant representation of women on decentralised governance and development. It looks at why this impressive representation of women in the local government has not translated into improved participation of women at the provincial and national parliament. The book discusses successful models, experiences of women leaders from different parts in India, and challenges faced by them. It offers new interpretations of findings and new methodologies to assess the contribution of women to decentralised governance and development. It is a rich source of material for researchers, teachers, practitioners, policymakers, NGOs, and think tanks.
